

Rillion (former Palette Software and Centsoft) announces new chairman of the board

The merged AP automation SaaS companies Palette Software and Centsoft were recently brought together under the common brand Rillion, marking the start of the next phase in the Group's growth journey.

As part of the growth journey, Rillion has recruited software industry veteran Lars Björk as Chairman of the Board to draw from his vast experience of growing and scaling businesses. Mr Björk was CEO of Qlik Technologies during the years that Qlik grew from a local player to an established international software business with 2,500 employees in 25 countries.

"I see no limit to Rillion's potential to expand. The US opportunity is especially exciting, the AP automation market has low penetration and is taking off now. With Rillion's market leading products and offerings, the company is perfectly positioned to take advantage of the strong structural market growth," says Björk.

Customers and partners will continue to benefit from the same market leading AP Automation solutions under the Rillion brand, signalling that we now are a fully integrated group, delivering a consistent customer experience meeting the highest demands. Year after year, we have enjoyed market leading NPS scores, and as Rillion we intend to further improve our product offering and customer service to continue to earn our customers' trust.

"We strive to make our solutions and services as easy to buy, deploy and use as possible, so that our customers can focus their time on building their businesses. Rillion brings peace of mind to Accounts Payable", says Mats Ferm, CEO of Rillion.
